MANAGEMENT COMMENT

The U.S. 2-year sovereign rate doubled its yield over the month. The portfolio benefited from the hedging position via futures of rising interest rate risk. An erratic movement was generated at the beginning of the month by the issuer Adler. This credit event was limited thanks to the spreading of the issuer risk over several maturities. However, a phase of accumulating negative news caused a capitulation that led to a decision to sell the longest bond in order to reduce the fund's volatility. In the end, the outcome was positive for the issuer, with a competitor taking a stake in its capital and the sale of non-strategic real estate assets for a total of 2.4 billions, which enabled it to reduce its financial leverage and calm down speculators. The portfolio is currently evolving with a low credit duration after the strong retracement of premiums and a lower interest rate duration in anticipation of the change in US monetary policy.
