MANAGEMENT COMMENT

In October, equity markets resumed their march forward. The Nasdaq gained +7.3% and the S&P500 +6.9% ahead of the European indices (Eurostoxx50 +5.0%). Japan suffered (Topix -1.4%) and the Chinese index Shanghai Shenzhen CSI300 rose only moderately (+0.9%).

Stocks continue to rise after a short period of consolidation in September. The prospect of a change in the US Federal Reserve's monetary policy, which will become progressively less accommodating with the imminent launch of tapering, has been largely priced in and is not causing the markets to tremble. For the time being, investors do not see any overheating in the US and seem to believe that tensions on supply chains, as well as on employment, will gradually ease as the pandemic risk recedes. High inflation is, therefore, still seen as a temporary phenomenon.

Value sectors went on to outperform more expensive sectors. Financials continued their strong performance, as did the more defensive Health Care and Utilities sectors.
